

I fervently believe that the airwaves, both radio and television, are a public trust. As such, the public trust is violated when individuals and corporations are allowed to own multiple radio and television stations in one market. Since the unwise elimination of the Fairness Doctrine powerful companies and individuals are now allowed to espouse one point of view, THEIRS, thus unduly influencing public opinion in whatever market they monopolize. This is undemocratic. These monopolies need to be abolished and the fairness doctrine needs to be reinstituted.
